

Jason Peschel

Assistant professor, Construction Management, School of Design and Construction

Peschel has been with WSU since 2006 and has been instrumental in the development of the construction management program. Faculty and students speak highly of him as a passionate instructor, mentor, and program coordinator.

He works closely with third year students in Estimating I & II, which are considered by many students to be the most challenging courses in the CM program. The material is hard and he is a tough grader, yet he remains highly respected and liked among his students. Peschel sets up his students for the expectations of the professional world while providing the necessary support to ensure his students do not fail.

Peschel has been engaged with student organizations and has coached a strong Associated Schools of Construction (ASC) Team that competes in the ASC Region 7 competition. His commercial teams have now gone six years in a row placing in the top 3 at the competition.

Writes one of his students “I am extremely thankful to have had classes with Jason and have worked with him on the Commercial Team for 2 years. I not only owe an enormous part of my successes at WSU to Jason but also my success in the industry. Jason was always there for me when I needed to talk to him at WSU and we have stayed in touch after my graduation; both on a professional and personal level. Jason will always be someone I turn to for advice and a life-long friend.”

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

2017
Convocation